Are any police, fire or EMS departments using electric vehicles today? - P. James East Williston

Electric vehicles, or EVs, are vehicles run partially or entirely on re-chargeable electric power. The fast-emerging EV market spans a diverse range, including battery electric vehicles, plug-in hybrids, hybrids, fuel cell electric vehicles, and much more. While Tesla dominates the public attention, a wide array of models, such as those from Ford and Hyundai, are being employed in the public sector.

EVs are steadily gaining traction across the U.S., not just with individual buyers, but also through public services sectors such as police, fire and emergency medical services. In recent times, the integration of EVs in the public sector has picked up incredible momentum as a result of increasing environmental concerns and improvements in technology. In 2024, the Police Department of South Pasadena City completely replaced its gasoline-powered vehicles with EVs. "This initiative not only ensures the safest vehicles for officers and staff, but also leads to substantial reductions in both fuel and maintenance costs," said South Pasadena Police Chief Brian Solinsky.

As more departments consider electrifying their fleets, the advantages of EVs in the emergency sector have become increasingly evident. Key benefits include reduced carbon emissions and lowered fuel and maintenance expenses. For police cruisers, impressive acceleration and speed, along with noise-free driving, become major benefits to achieve enhanced performance while avoiding any disruptions. In the case of ambulances, rapid response time and a quieter operating environment can be beneficial, especially during high-stress medical situations. Lastly, for fire trucks, EVs allow for emission-free firefighting in addition to a quick response time. The adoption of EVs seems to be a shift toward a more disaster-resilient, environmentally sustainable, and economically efficient future. "Our sustainable transportation researchers are driving progress on clean energy solutions for entire sectors," said Chris Gearhart, the Director at the U.S Department of Energy's National Renewable Energy Laboratory's Center for Integrated Mobility Sciences.

However, this change comes with its setbacks, such as limited range due to frequent charging halts. This challenge further exacerbates during high-stakes situations such as criminal pursuits or medical emergencies. Next, since EVs are solely reliant on the power grid, they become highly vulnerable during power outages or face battery strains during extreme weather conditions. While the transition towards EVs in the emergency sector is a promising step toward a cleaner future, it is crucial to address the challenges that come with it. Securing loose ends regarding the infrastructure and grid dependency should be combated with a gradual hybrid transition.

Important Notice if you have Separate Medicare Drug Plan:

For 2026's stand alone medicare drug plans, your choice of pharmacy can result in very different copay amounts. When you check your Part D plan on Medicare.gov, make sure you also click on the blue link to check the results by multiple pharmacies. (Walgreens, CVS, mail order, etc.) Some pharmacies that were "in network" for 2025 are "out of network" for 2026. If you need free assistance finding a 2026 Medicare drug plan, you can call the Nassau Health Insurance Hotline: 516-485-3754 or call Joe Mazza at 516-581-0269.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Shrimp Spaghetti

- 1 lb spaghetti noodles
- 2 tbsp butter
- 1/4 cup avocado oil
- 1 pkg (12 oz) raw shrimp
- 2 tbsp garlic powder, divided
- 1 tsp smoked paprika
- 1 cup chicken broth
- 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1/4 cup heavy cream
- 1 tsp onion powder
- 1 cup frozen or fresh spinach bread, for serving

Cook spaghetti noodles according to package instructions.

In skillet over medium heat, add butter, avocado oil and shrimp. Mix in 1 tablespoon garlic powder and paprika. Remove shrimp after they begin to turn pink; set aside.

Add chicken broth, Parmesan, heavy cream, remaining garlic powder, onion powder and spinach to skillet and mix well. Add shrimp back to skillet to finish cooking. Mix in noodles and serve with bread.
