RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Turkey Bacon & Spinach Quiche with Sweet Potato Crust

- Nonstick cooking spray
1 medium sweet potato, peeled
1 tsp olive oil
1 medium yellow onion, diced
6 slices uncured, nitrate-free turkey bacon, thinly sliced
10 oz frozen chopped spinach, thawed
3/4 tsp dried dillweed, crumbled
1/4 tsp salt
1/4 tsp freshly ground pepper
4 large egg whites
2 large eggs
1/4 cup fat-free milk
1 1/2 tbsp fat-free feta cheese

Preheat oven to 400 F. Lightly spray 9-inch pie pan with nonstick cooking spray.

In medium bowl, using box grater, grate sweet potato. Measure out 2 cups. Gently press sweet potato on bottom and up sides of pan, forming crust. Sweet potato will be loose but will hold together once cooked.

Bake 20 minutes, or until crust is cooked. Remove from oven. Let stand to cool. Reduce oven temperature to 350 F.

In medium skillet, heat oil over medium-high heat, swirling to coat bottom. Cook onion 6 minutes, or until almost translucent, stirring frequently. Add turkey bacon. Cook 3-4 minutes, or until onion and bacon begin to brown, stirring frequently. Add spinach, dillweed, salt and pepper. Cook 1-2 minutes, or until water from spinach is released. Remove from heat. Transfer mixture into sweet potato crust.

In medium bowl, whisk egg whites, eggs and milk. Pour over mixture in crust. Sprinkle feta over top. Bake 35-40 minutes, or until knife inserted into center comes out clean. Transfer to cooling rack. Let cool 10 minutes before cutting into wedges.

It was effortless working with Patti. From the start she took care of all the things that google mentions and the ones that it does not. From the house photos, to open houses, managing offers, dealings with the buyer, the attorneys, insights into showcasing the house, advising and assisting on fixing things that'd make a difference, she was on top of things and made it look effortless.

All in all, she was amazing and have nothing but gratitude in our hearts for hand holding us during such big change in our lives.

We had a great experience with Patti as our agent. Patti was a great help, she has a ton of experience and knows how to drive a sale to completion! She responds quickly and listens to the customer, but gives her own insights and advice from her wealth of experience. She has decades of experience in the New Hyde Park area. She was great to work with, we appreciate all her help and expertise!

EARTH TALK

From the Editors of E/The Environmental Magazine

How can we help native plant species survive in a warmer world where their terrain is heating up as a result of climate change? - Robert B, Garden City

Native plants are very vulnerable to climate change. High temperatures mean they have to adjust to increased droughts and higher CO2 levels. Three options for native plants are available when presented with temperatures outside of their natural range of temperatures: they can adapt, migrate, or go extinct.

“We know that, because of climate, native species need to move,” says Thomas Nuhlfer, a researcher in organic and evolutionary biology at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. Migration works slowly which means they won’t be able to keep up with the rapid nature of climate change. Therefore, it’s necessary for human assistance in moving plants into suitable environments. Climate change also encourages the growth of invasive species, which is happening right now and causing the population to increase exponentially. An increase in invasive species can lead to a rapid decrease in native plants, reducing biodiversity and making environments more prone to natural disasters.

Managed relocation is the process of helping plants move into new areas with better climate conditions. Although the extent to which humans should intervene is debated, assisted migration is increasingly accepted as a necessary conservation strategy. Choosing which plants to relocate and where to move them involves several factors. Scientists have found there is an overlap between invasive traits and restoration. Therefore, choosing plants that have traits associated with invasive species is necessary as they often provide the tools necessary to create a plan for survival in a foreign environment. Apart from those, it’s important to focus on traits that are helpful, such as high metabolic rate and large size.

Today, there are many types of ongoing conservation efforts. Seed banking includes gathering seeds from multiple plants to ensure the possibility of future reintroduction. Habitat protection involves preserving natural environments from destruction, helping to maintain biodiversity and providing a safe refuge for native species. Planting native species for enhances the durability of the ecosystem from natural disasters. Research and monitoring give us feedback about plants’ response to climate change as well as new conservation efforts to use, which is important for policy feedback.

Planting native species in yards supports pollinators and wildlife. Avoiding pesticides and chemicals helps keep beneficial insects and soil organisms safe. Supporting reforestation contributes to habitat recovery. Encouraging nurseries to grow plants creates sustainable options. These small actions can create a big impact.
